

Join the Murray State Center for Economic Education and the Kentucky Council on Economic Education for this FREE workshop for Teachers in Grades 4-12!

BUTCHER, BAKER, CANDLESTICK MAKER: ENTREPRENEURIAL PROJECT

When: Thursday, March 1, 2007 from 4:00pm to 7:00pm

Where: Ponderosa Steak House

127 U.S. Highway 68 (Exit 47 off Purchase Parkway. Travel east on Highway 68)
Draffenville, Kentucky

Why: The Murray State University Center for Economic Education will sponsor its annual Entrepreneurial Fair on campus May 15, 2007. To help teachers prepare for the Fair, this workshop will provide training and materials needed to participate. There are several financial incentives for the teachers and students to participate.

Students who complete their entrepreneurial project can:

- learn all economic and consumerism core content items
- demonstrate increased initiative and self-confidence
- acquire practical skills and learn to solve problems
- learn about real world business
- expand their vocabulary, improve their social skills, and apply core content

Each workshop participant will receive

- Opportunity to receive a $75 teacher stipend if they offer an Entrepreneurial Fair in their classroom or school. An additional $3 per business teacher stipend to organize their Fair. A $3 per business budget for their students.
- Opportunity for classroom assistance to help organize the Fair.
- Hands-on training using the FREE curriculum that has been aligned with the Kentucky Core Content in Economics, Consumerism, and Math
- Certificate for three hours of professional development credit
- Buffet dinner at the Ponderosa Steak House

Space is limited and pre-registration is mandatory!

Please register today with your name, school, grade taught and subject area and e-mail address.
Registration closes Tuesday, February 27, 2007

Contact: Barry Brown, Center Director Janice Vaughn, Field Director

Murray State Center for Economic Education

Telephone 270-809-4277 Fax 270-809-5478

E-mail: Econed@murraystate.edu

There is NO charge for attending this workshop.

